

Aaron Hodgson

Trumpeter Aaron Hodgson has garnered acclaim for his "exquisite musicianship and assured composure" (International Trumpet Guild) and has been described as "an outstanding trumpet voice with much to say" (CMS Symposium). A prizewinner in the Ellsworth Smith and OSM Standard Life competitions, Aaron has been featured on CBC Radio and has performed as a concerto soloist with l'Orchestre de la Francophonie at Canada's National Arts Centre. His solo album, Inner Voice, was released on Blue Griffin Recordings in 2017.

As an active orchestral musician, Aaron has collaborated with renowned conductors such as Helmuth Rilling, Donald Runnicles, and Neeme Järvi. His performances can be heard on Naxos and Analekta records, where he served as principal trumpet in recordings of Bach's Magnificat, Berlioz's Symphonie Fantastique, and the complete symphonies of Beethoven and Brahms. Beyond orchestral work, Aaron is dedicated to expanding the trumpet's repertoire and pushing its artistic boundaries. He has commissioned or premiered numerous new works and was a founding member of the Carnyx Trio, Reverb Brass, and the Reveille Trumpet Collective.

Aaron's research focuses on identity, career preparation, and innovative teaching practices for musicians. Between 2022 and 2025, he serves as a Teaching Fellow at Western University's Centre for Teaching and Learning, where his project, Rethinking Applied Study, explores new approaches to teaching and learning in applied music contexts. His research has been presented at international conferences, including those organized by the International Society for Music Education, the Ontario Music Educators' Association, and the College Music Society.

An accomplished educator, Aaron is an Associate Professor at Western University's Don Wright Faculty of Music. He is a sought-after adjudicator for music festivals and has delivered masterclasses in Australia, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, and across North America. Aaron holds a Doctor of Musical Arts from Yale University and is proud to be an S.E. Shires Performing Artist.
